

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

The Witcher, a movie that Netflix turned into a series, raises the issue of racism through a number of its characters, In addition, the researcher offers some recommendations for future studies that concentrate on the same area of studying racial prejudice.

5.1 Conclusion

In Conclusion, the researcher discovered from movie script The Witcher that a number of minority characters, including Renfri, Filavandrel, and Geralt, accept racial prejudice from society as a whole. The researcher identified 58 data in the script contains Triggering effect of racism and People beliefs and attitude towards different race, that each receive 29 data. Racial prejudice comes in four different forms: Felling Superiority, Felling different Race are Alien, Felling Proprietary Claim, and Fear and Suspicious.

The main character of this movie, Geralt, is the one who experiences racism the most. People tend to assume that he is an alien because of his distinct physical, cultural, and personal traits from the majority of people, and they act prejudicedly without checking the facts. The issue is purposefully brought up because there is a great deal of racism brought on by misunderstandings and the existence of various characters who think they are better because they belong to their group.

Additionally, racism develops as a result of previous battles that led to majorities of a group oppressing minorities as a result of their victory, as well as the development of status, social class, and colonization laws that made the problem of racism even bigger and more systemically pervasive.

5.2 Suggestion

It is intended that this research will benefit society in general as well as the academic community. Fans of The Witcher and other movies with racial prejudice themes may find the solution in our research, say the researchers. It is unfortunate that there are still many people who always judge a particular ethnicity or race because there is news with negative sentiments that in the end directly point to a certain ethnicity, according to researchers, who suggest that people need to realize how important it is to double-check and find out the facts if there is a hoax information that leads to cases of racism, especially Racial Prejudice.

Researchers are aware that this research is still far from ideal expectations, and they are hopeful that further researchers will be able to fill this gap and expand research in order to help science, particularly sociology, improve. Of course, the researcher hopes that to work will support and/or enhance that of other scholars working on related issues.
